All walls which are to be exposed to view, are to be faced with the best brick, selected as well with reference to color, as to smoothness and durability; and to be laid with a struck joint. Wetting. --If the brick be laid in dry weather, they must be thoroughly made wet before laying; and in all cases the bed joints are to be well filled with mortar, and the vertical joints well slushed up. Headers. --Have a heading course to every smooth course of the rough work. Chimneys and Flues. --Build all chimneys and ventilating flues as indicated in the plans, taking care to lay the brick close, and fill the joints well with mortar. The flues are to be laid as straight as practicable. They must be smoothly plastered on the inside and left entirely clear from all refuse material when finished. The chimney tops to be neatly finished. The ventilating flues to be provided with Emmersons Caps, and to have two ornamental iron Registers in every room...
